THE Echo claims that Greenville pays over $30,000 per annum as revenue to the U. S. Government.

THE editor of the Danville Tribune often tells his readers that he has no hearing. He has doubtless convinced a goodly majority of them that he hasn't any sense.

BRECKENRIDGE county has two colored candidates—one for jailer and one for coroner. They ask and expect their Republican brethren to support them, which they should do.

At the recent meeting of the Grand Lodge of the I. O. G. T. of the State of Kentucky at Louisville, Hon. George Beard, of Hardinsburg, was elected Grand Worthy Chief Templar.

Prof. KING, the Chicago balloonist who made an ascension two weeks ago, has been found in a swamp in Michigan. The voyage was made for scientific purposes, but about the only thing they learned was how to live without food during four or five days spent in the swamp.

THE convicts in the penitentiary at Frankfort have adopted the practice of cutting off their hands in order to be relieved of work. Within the past twenty months seven men have cut, attempted to cut, or off their hands. Most of them have been hemp-hackers.

SECRETARY WINDOM has been re-elected to the Senate from Minnesota, which position he resigned to become a member of Garfield's cabinet. There was some opposition to his return, but it availed nothing, just as the opposition to Beck in our own State is to end in a flash and a fizzle.

THE Southern promised its readers a week or two ago that it would send down its patent outside. We anxiously looked for the change, believing that the paper would be very greatly improved; but it was only a change from the devil to a witch. The change was made from a patent outside to a patent inside. It was a pretty good joke, nevertheless.

THE Breckenridge News states that Judge McBeath removed John Slaton from the office of jailer of Breckenridge county last week. From what we could learn of Slaton's conduct while in office he richly merited removal. Judge McBeath and Attorney W. R. Haynes are winning golden opinions in the discharge of their duties.

At the last term of the Breckenridge Circuit Court Beverly Minton was sentenced to the penitentiary for twenty-one years for the murder of Willis Frank two years ago. An appeal was taken and a decision was given the other day reversing that of the lower court and remanding it for a new trial. Minton is a hard character and it is doubtful if he gets off much better in a new trial, as the killing of Frank was unprovoked.

THE great dog fight between "Cris," of Louisville, and "Pilot," of New York, occurred a few miles from Louisville last Wednesday. The New York team killed the pride of Kentucky in about an hour, literally making sausage meat of poor Cris. The owners of the dogs had staked $1,000 a side, and much other money was put up on the result of the battle. Although the site of the battle-ground was known to the authorities, none of them interfered and the cruel scene was uninterrupted.

We learn from the News that Tom Murphy, a noted character of Elizabethtown, was found dead in or near that place last Thursday. A gash had been cut in his throat, a bullet hole was found in his right temple, one in the center of the right side of the head and one in the right eye. He was also badly lacerated as if he had been beaten with a club. The coroner's jury charged three men, two named Price, the other Matias, with the murder, and writs of arrest were issued for them.

A SUIT was filed in the United States Circuit Court at Louisville last week by W. R. Thorne, of New York, a holder of P. & E. R. bonds against Grayson county to compel payment of the last installment of the interest, which fell due on Oct. 1. The county court neglected to make any provision for the payment of the interest, and the county will be forced to pay a large amount of cost in addition to the interest of the debt. This is the first time Grayson has ever shown up on the delinquent list, and we are sorry to see her coming out this way at this time. We hope she will come out and be what she has been heretofore—prompt in the settlement of all demands against her.

A TERRIBLE disaster occurred on the Cincinnati Southern Railroad, in Lincoln county, about ten miles from Stanford, last Thursday. The train was an extra freight out for the purpose of delivering coal to agents along the line, and while at McKinney Station the engineer got off and the conductor undertook to run the train back to the next station to get some hands. Several boys returned, and when the engine reached the stopping-place the conductor could not stop it, and it ran into the waiting train, killing five men and boys and mauling several more in a horrible manner. The conductor remarked, as he left the station, that he intended to "run her to h—l," and it is thought that he cared but little if he did run into the other cars or what became of his passengers or himself. He escaped unhurt, but if the law can reach him he should be punished to his fullest extent.

EX-GOVERNOR MORGAN, of New York, was appointed Secretary of the Treasury on Monday last. Mr. Morgan is a capitalist and sugar importer, which, unless he disposes of his business, renders him ineligible to the office.

BARREN COUNTY is the proud possessor of a man who has twenty-six brothers and sisters, most of whom are living. Such numerical strength would suggest that Barren is a misnomer, and that it is anything but barren when it comes to family matters.

SENATOR EDMUNDS, of Vermont, the most ardent radical in the Union placed in nomination a Democrat for Secretary of the Senate last Monday and he was elected without opposition. The new Secretary's name is Shober and he was formerly a member of Congress from North Carolina.

WILL the local press never cease the use of such words as "preventative," "optional," "unjustness," and the like? There are enough legitimate words in the English language to express any idea with which our contemporaries may be afflicted, without pressing these banalities of bombastic ignorance into service.

EIGHTEEN hundred square miles of territory were burned over by the fire in Michigan a few weeks ago, and damages were inflicted to the amount of $1,800,000, to say nothing of the loss of life. The dwellings burned numbered 1,147, the stores 129, schoolhouses 28, hotels 12, mills 21, and docks 20. A very small amount of money has been raised for the people, and a vast amount of suffering during the coming winter is imminent.

EDITOR THOMAS of the Greenville Echo, allows the school-boys about town to amuse themselves by writing articles for his paper; at least one would judge so, when his paper speaks of a "financial decapitation," and the "unjustness of a demand," to say nothing of flinging in a Latin phrase, and then presuming on the ignorance of its readers, and translating it in the same line. We are gratified, however, to know that he is growing older.

THE Hartford Fair, which was held last week, was the most successful one held for years. The attendance the last three days, (they being the only one of much importance,) was perfectly astonishing; standing room only could be had on the amphitheatre, while the grounds were covered with men. The exhibits were very good, and the premiums were liberal enough. On the whole, every one interested was well satisfied with the way the fair passed off.—Southern.

A Mess of Potage.
The present course of Arthur and Republican managers in general must satisfy any right thinking man of any party that it is for their own good and not for that of the country at large that the ship of state is being run in the interest of the party in power, and also that the leaders are forced to get down to little things to perpetuate that power. To show something of this littleness one notable and recent instance is all that is necessary to cite.

There is in Virginia a division of the Republican party known as "Straight-outs," as regards the payment of the State debt, and it was with the repudiating Re-adjusters that Garfield was in sympathy. As a consequence a majority of the Republicans in or seeking office were what might be called Straightouts, and were in favor of paying the State debt of Virginia, but when Arthur gave Mahone to understand that he should lack for nothing that could contribute to the success of the repudiation movement in the State, the like amount of flipping was never seen before. Jorgensen and Dezenford, Republican Congressmen, jumped at the fence as soon as possible—Jorgensen to take a number of post-offices to his friends, and Dezenford for the Lord only knows what, and a large majority of the debt-paying Republicans of the State have followed suit with an alacrity of which people could never have dreamed in the days of Garfield, who was for honest government and letting local issues take care of themselves.

What does this mean? It means that Arthur and the Republican party are bidding for the support of Mahone in the Senate, and to make this effectual Mahone and the Representatives must agree touching the financial affairs of Virginia. If the Administration could win over the debt-payers to the repudiation side of the house, then it could depend on Mahone, and not otherwise with any certainty that he would not prove recreant to the trust reposed in him. This, then, was their work, and right well it has been accomplished. Instead of being governed by principles of common honesty, National, State and individual, the party has descended to the petty act of bidding for the support of a political traitor by forcing men who were not in a position to stand pressure to abandon what their conscience, their honor, their love of country and their respect for all that Virginia has been told them was right and that they ought to support. They were given to understand that their political life depended on their action, and that they must act at once and in a way that suited their dictators. At the expense, then, of their self-respect, these men accepted the terms of the administration tyrants and became loud halloers in the train of the beggarly god of repudiation that rides ruthlessly in his chariot over the credit of a State which, next to their own, should be guarded and cherished by its citizens.

Such is the Administration and such the means of which it avails itself to keep working force in the arena of legislation. Verily, a party forced to such expedients to maintain itself cannot have much strength of principle left, and the sooner it dies the better for the country, the people, and itself.

No Quarter!

We hear people and papers say "give the Administration a chance," wait and see what it will do," and such things, but we must say that to the propriety of such a course is not apparent. We already know enough of Arthur and his policy without giving him a chance at anything further, and for one, we do not propose to let him drive his whole term of office and say not a word in criticism of his course, and we do not believe there is a true Democrat in the country which will now say that we must give the State a chance. Whatever they do, let it be good or bad, we ought not in duty to our party to stand by in silence. If a thing is badly done by them let us raise our voice and condemn it, and if they do it well let us consider that it was a duty and they deserve no special credit for it, for probably they would not have done it if they had not been watched, and that the Democratic party could have done it equally as well or better. Let us lose no opportunity of attacking weakness, whether of principle or action, and wage a relentless war on every phase of Radicalism which may present itself. There is nothing to be gained by lying in apathy when the opposition is in possession of the Government, but there is all to lose.

Hayes was a sort of goodly good man, and because he did nothing particularly objectionable the Democratic press of the country rested quietly on its arms and what was the result? Garfield was elected, and the country, as if for some sin, continued in the hands of the Republicans. Hayes' administration was believed to have laid nothing objectionable to conservative people, but a little sham investigation now shows it to have been little if any less corrupt than even that of Grant. What appeared so fair and honest is now known to have been a cloak to hide corruption which scarcely finds a parallel, save in the history of the Administration preceding it. The press, as a general thing, was still during the incumbency of Hayes, believing that a policy of honesty and fairness had been inaugurated, but it would seem to us that they ought by this time to have learned that fair faces don't count anywhere, and especially in politics.

Arthur may go along all right to all appearances, but what if all does appear to be right? His successor will have the same amount of corruption to clean up, and if a Republican, to make room for more. Don't be led for an instant into thinking that frauds, and of the gravest character, do not exist, and are not being perpetrated at Washington City. The investigations themselves are frauds and we feel warranted in the assertion that not one of those designated as the guilty parties will ever be punished. More likely after the bogus storm has blown over and the true sun of political turpitude has come out they will be rewarded most amply by another office and renewed opportunities for increased facilities for stealing. Believing this to be the case, and that true reformation can only come at the hands of another party. We implore fellow-Democrats throughout the land to put their shoulder to the wheel and labor faithfully for the party from now until the election in 1884. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, but through the agency of a spirit of dormancy and listlessness that liberty of which we were once so proud is well-nigh lost, and we are almost at the hands of thieves and robbers. Let us work and work with a will at all times and places. The prize is worth striving for, and we must win it or be forced to endure forever the almost awful curse of Radicalism, which taken in a national sense is synonymous with fraud, corruption and dishonesty in general.

That Tariff Convention.

Somebody of New York City has been known to send us a circular asking us to assist in spreading a call for a tariff convention to meet in New York some time during the coming winter, and he asks us to lay before our readers the object of the convention, namely to take such steps as may be deemed necessary and need to secure legislation by Congress which shall be more fully protective of American industries, and he especially requests us to help in forwarding the interests of the said tariff convention by calling the attention of the producers of corn, cotton, hemp, wheat, rye, oats, barley, sugar and wool to the designs and objects of the convention.

What we have been pleased to denounce in its insanity appears on three counts: First, he must have been insane to have sent the document to us, knowing that Western Democrats, and we in particular, are so pronouncedly in favor of free trade, and that we would individually as well as in Hades itself as to be bound propagating or disseminating the pernicious principles of a protective tariff doctrine. Second, that he should think that the producing class, which constitutes the preponderant element in our great country, should be so foolish as to let themselves be used by a party for the purpose of a party which is sapping their strength and taking, as it were, the very bread from their wives and children, and rendering themselves mere leeches of wood and drawers of water to the rich manufacturers of the east, who roll in wealth by means of the tax levied on every article that their hands wear out, on every kerchief with which they wipe the sweat from their face, and every pin with which their beloved wives fasten their dress, as well as upon every other article of use in, or about the human frame, or which can in any way contribute to human happiness or pleasure. The third count is that his proposition and request that we call the attention of our people to the matter is itself suicidal. What man, if an invitation to dine be sent him by his enemy will go into his house, knowing that he will, only harm, and that of a serious nature, awaits him there? Surely he would be under a greater fool than the one we have under consideration. This then, is why we say that his invitation is suicidal.

Obituary.

Departed this life at the home of his parents in Owensboro, Ky., on the 14th inst., little Samuel Hall Axton. The fact that death loves a shining mark is again forcibly exemplified in the taking off of little Sammy. A bright and lovely child, he was the joy and pride of his loving parents, the delight of the household and a universal favorite. Notwithstanding his tender years he gave strong proof of future usefulness, and even greatness, and had he been spared we have no doubt but that his success in life would have fully verified the happy predictions of his many friends. But alas! "Life is a fever-dream" with little Sammy, but maybe it is best, and may a benignant Heaven grant grief-stricken parents and family strength and fortitude to bear their great affliction, which has followed so closely their loss of little Johnny, whose obituary notice appeared in the HERALD a few weeks since. God has certainly chastened them, and may He now as abundantly bless them is the prayer of their friends.

Killing in Owensboro.

On Saturday night, the 16th inst., Jack Luckett was shot and killed in Owensboro by Dick Vowels. The difficulty arose as did the late lamentable affair at this place over a game of cards which was being played in a room over Herron & Co's. saloon. The game was that known as "seven up," and when they had reached the fourth deal Luckett accused Vowels of making a misdeal, and demanded that Vowels count his cards. This was not according to Hoyle or rather of Vowels' interpretation of him and he refused. Luckett was then taken down stairs, but not until Vowels had registered a threat against his life. Vowels then went down and out, to get a pistol, and when he came back found Luckett still at the saloon. Walking in at the door he opened fire on him and put four bullet holes through him before any one could interfere. Luckett then ran out on the street and fell into the arms of a friend saying "I'm shot all to pieces; I'm a dead man!" A priest and physician were sent for, but the wounded man died in twenty minutes.

Vowels immediately gave himself up and was placed in jail, and the coroner's jury returned a verdict of wilful murder.

Beaver Dam.

October 21, 1881.
The weather having turned cooler, I believe I will try and contribute a few lines to your interesting paper. Our little Dam still lives and contains many beliefs. Since I last wrote you many changes have occurred—some for better and some for worse, no doubt. We still boast of two first-class drug goods houses, three groceries, one drug store, blacksmith shop, two hardware shops, market house, post-office and a livery stable. The only thing we lack is a barber shop, then we would be as completely as most other places.

Barnard & Blankenship shipped between two and three hundred hogsheads of tobacco and made considerable money. W. H. Blankenship had charge of the factory and has won the name of having the best classed tobacco ever shipped to Louisville. This is quite a compliment to our worthy citizen. The "city daisies" are going to have plank walks put down in front of all banks and dwelling houses in town. This is a grand thing, and the scarcity of everything will make the coming winter hard on every one—even in good health—and a great many, should sickness befall them, will not be able to buy medicine for their families. Some few farmers have not yet sown wheat. Many who sowed early report wheat looking remarkably well, some of it five to eight inches high. The miners along the P. & E. R. R. have given notice to the operators that after the 1st day of November they will not dig coal for less than 90 cents per ton. Everything they eat and wear is so much higher priced than last winter that they cannot get it. They claim, and dig for 2 cents per bushel. This is true, and I see no reason why their wages should not be increased. I trust, however, there will be no strike.

October 21, 1881.
The weather having turned cooler, I believe I will try and contribute a few lines to your interesting paper. Our little Dam still lives and contains many beliefs. Since I last wrote you many changes have occurred—some for better and some for worse, no doubt. We still boast of two first-class drug goods houses, three groceries, one drug store, blacksmith shop, two hardware shops, market house, post-office and a livery stable. The only thing we lack is a barber shop, then we would be as completely as most other places.

Barnard & Blankenship shipped between two and three hundred hogsheads of tobacco and made considerable money. W. H. Blankenship had charge of the factory and has won the name of having the best classed tobacco ever shipped to Louisville. This is quite a compliment to our worthy citizen. The "city daisies" are going to have plank walks put down in front of all banks and dwelling houses in town. This is a grand thing, and the scarcity of everything will make the coming winter hard on every one—even in good health—and a great many, should sickness befall them, will not be able to buy medicine for their families. Some few farmers have not yet sown wheat. Many who sowed early report wheat looking remarkably well, some of it five to eight inches high. The miners along the P. & E. R. R. have given notice to the operators that after the 1st day of November they will not dig coal for less than 90 cents per ton. Everything they eat and wear is so much higher priced than last winter that they cannot get it. They claim, and dig for 2 cents per bushel. This is true, and I see no reason why their wages should not be increased. I trust, however, there will be no strike.

Methodist Preachers.

A gentleman came to town a few days since with $6,000. Some of the boys thought he was one of the James boys because he had so much money. He was in the saw-log business. Mr. John Blankenship and Miss Josephine Rogers were united in matrimony Oct. 20, 1881. Miss Lida Walker, Julia Pendleton and Nettie Stevens, and Messrs. W. J. Berry, Tommie Stevens and Ben Smith, of Hartford College, were in town Saturday.

Don't know Half Their Value.

"They cured me of ague, biliousness and kidney complaint, as recommended. I had a half bottle left, which I used for my two little girls, who the doctors and neighbors said could not be cured. I would have lost both of them one night if I had not given them Hop Bitters. They did them so much good I continued their use until they were cured. This is why I say you do not know half the value of Hop Bitters, and do not recommend them high enough."—B. Rochester, N. Y.—Ames' Sanitary House.

When thinking of visiting Louisville there should be one thing made up in your mind, and that is that you will stop at the Standford Hotel. Everything is new and nice about the home, and is kept in the best of order. No better table is set anywhere; no better service is to be found anywhere, and the fare is only $2 per day. Be sure to go to the Standford.

Our old friend, D. C. Peters, of Earle's, Muhlenberg county, has formed a partnership with Mr. G. W. Eaves, Sr., of Greenville, a well-known merchant. They have secured the large house formerly occupied by C. E. Eades, and have moved their entire stock there, and have also purchased a large assortment of choice goods and now have one of the completest stocks to be found in the Green River country. Mr. Peters is well-known here and quite a favorite with our people, and we wish the new firm of Peters & Eaves the success they so richly merit. Our Muhlenberg county friends should give them a liberal patronage.

Some lady of this city should take the agency for the popular and useful book, "Practical Housekeeper," issued by the Buckeye Publishing Co., Minneapolis, Minn. It sells rapidly on its merits. Address the publishers for terms.

We attended the concert at Calhoun last week given by Mrs. Wilson, music teacher, for the benefit of the College at that place. The music, both vocal and instrumental, as well as the declamations, were well rendered.

We had the pleasure of calling at the Progress office while in Calhoun last week and forming the acquaintance of its editors and proprietors. The Progress is moving along in the even tenor of its way. Success to it and its corps.

Anderson's Bazaar is always ahead; if anything very good comes out, this house is the first to secure it. The proprietor has just secured the sale of Stark's celebrated boots, which, though equal to a hand-made boot, costs only about the same as Eastern shoddy goods. Call and see them.

Making staves is the order of the day in the upper portion of the country. The timber of that section is unsurpassed and very abundant. Ford's stove factory is in operation near Fortville, and is turning out thousands of the finest staves daily. They are being made for the Louisville market.

One of the most obliging hosts that ever graced the table of a well-kept inn is John Heller, of the Heller House, Cecilian, Ky. Stop with him for supper on going to Louisville, and for breakfast on going back. He will treat you right and make you happy with a first class meal at a very reasonable price.

While in Calhoun last week we were the guest of James Cunningham, proprietor of the Grigsby House. When we say guest, we mean it in every sense of the word, for notwithstanding the large crowd of people who stopped there, every one seemed to receive special attention. The greatest mystery to us was how he could entertain so large a number of guests and give each such care and attention.

Van May, of this county buried his wife last Sunday, and at the funeral, his father-in-law, John Moore, accused him of having poisoned the woman. May became enraged and a fight ensued. We could not learn the extent of the damage done each other by the combatants, but May's coat was cut several inches across the breast. Moore was arrested and placed under bond for his appearance in the Police Court here next Saturday, as was also May, who was arrested on a double charge of breach of the peace and manslaughter.

The hops at the Grigsby House were well attended during the fair at Calhoun last week, both by visitors and the beaux and belles of that embryo city. Indeed, it seems that Calhoun is the place.

"When youth and beauty's blended rays Set hearts and ball-rooms in a blaze; Or sportive lights reveal More inward bruiser than it heats; In flames each tells her victim kills, And sparks fly upward in quindities." Miss Bettie Moreland, Owensboro, Misses Ida and Lizzie Bell, Livermore, Miss Lizzie McIntyre, South Carrollton, Miss Mollie Randolph, Henderson, Miss Dixie Robinson, Bowling Green, Misses Jennie and Irene Eaves, Sacramento, Misses Maggie King, Nannie Alexander, Katie Hardwick, Mollie and Fidelia Hayden, Lillie M. Reid, and Mamie Anderson, Hartford, were among the visiting young ladies attending the hops. The dance was so exciting and enjoyable.

"That fairy forms, now here, now there, Hovered like children of the air." The officers, committees and floor managers will please accept our thanks for courtesies, kindnesses and attention shown us on these occasions.

We had the pleasure of attending the Calhoun Fair on Friday and Saturday of last week. While the exhibition of stock was not as large as on former occasions, the stock present was of superior quality. The attendance on the three first days was rather poor, but on Friday and Saturday at an early hour the people began to arrive from the rural precincts, and by 10 o'clock the amphitheater was well filled.

Oil and pure pine tar at the Red Front.
For spin cotton and batting go to the Red Front.
It is a fact that Kendall's Spavin Cure is all it is claimed to be. See advertisement.
We thought we were too late until we saw the advertisement of Kendall's Spavin Cure.
Wanted - Anything in the world the farmers have to sell, in the way of produce, and will pay the highest prices, at the Red Front.
Capt. Harper, of Tennessee, passed through here Monday with 350 head of cattle en route for Owensboro. This was the finest drove of cattle we have seen for many years.
Lemons, oranges, apples, coconuts, onions, leeks, hominy, Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, turnips, cranberries, cabbage, and anything else that your heart could wish at the Red Front.
Go out in the damp air, or sit unprotected in a draught, and your throat will feel sore and your head uncomfortable. You have taken a cold, which you can remove as promptly as you received it by using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Our young friend, Wm. A. Gibson, has taken charge of the store at Island Station which was made vacant by the death of Mr. J. T. Coffman. Mr. Gibson is a worthy young man, and we commend him to the good people of that vicinity.
Henry Pace, barber, who left during the fair on account of permitting gambling on his premises, which was developed by the shooting of Smith by Haycraft, was arrested in Hopkinsville last week and gave bond for his appearance here next Friday. He reached here Sunday evening to attend his trial.

Married, on Tuesday, October 18th, 1881, at the residence of Burch Edson, Esq., by Rev. Calvin Voyles, Mr. Joseph Petty and Miss Helen Edson.
It is a truth that all admit, that while twice late to sever the ties of single blessedness, "This better late than never."

Little Bo Peep has lost her sheep. And don't know where to find them, but anybody can tell you where to find J. Winter & Co., super-excellent clothing establishment, corner of Third and Market streets, Louisville, Ky. Their choice lot of fall goods in the merchant tail department, and their own manufactured ready-made clothing are unsurpassed and unsurpassable.

Kibby Joe Hocker, a well known colored preacher of Cromwell district, died last week, at the advanced age of 96 years. He had been sick but a few days but his extreme age prevented his assistance to the ravages of disease. His wife, who was very old, died at midnight, six hours before him. Kibby Joe was very much respected by a large number of people.

"Well I do declare, Hezekiah, if this don't beat all! The HERALD this week that Mr. Anderson Bazar is an offer! the very best sewing machines at twenty dollars." "Well, don't you know old woman when we was to the fair last week this was a sellin' of eight dollar clocks for five dollars, and I'd bet our brindle cow 'gainst a Plimouth rooster that they'll be offerin' gold dollars for six bits next week," and the old man smoked his pipe and wondered what this world was coming to.

Special attention is called to the liberal advertisement of Phillips Bros. & McAtee, of Owensboro, Ky., which appears in this paper. This is one of the best firms in the Green River country, and the inducements they are able to offer in goods are such that people can scarcely afford to buy goods of any other house. They buy goods for cash, and sell the same way, or exchange them for country produce, consequently it is not strange that they are able to offer such bargains. Their salesmen are polite and attentive, and seek to promote the interest of their customers, as well as that of their employers, and as Mr. W. W. Watkins, former of Cloverport, and well known to many of our readers, occupies a position in their house, as also does Mr. Bumpus, of Staunton, Va., brother of the renowned J. J. Bumpus, of Shillito's wholesale dry goods house, Cincinnati. Don't forget or neglect to go to Phillips Bros. & McAtee's for goods when you go to Owensboro.

"I Am All Played Out"

Is a common complaint. If you feel so, get a package of Kidney-Wort and take it and you will at once feel its tonic power. It renews the healthy action of the kidneys, bowels and liver, and thus restores the natural life and strength to the weary body. It can now be had in either dry or liquid form, and in either way is always prompt and efficient in action. - New Bedford Standard.

The most exciting feature of the fair was that of the young ladies' riding ring Saturday evening, in which there were two entries, Miss Lucy Landrum and Miss Annie Allen, of Calhoun, which resulted in favor of Miss Landrum.
Upon the whole the fair was a success, financially as well as socially. We tender thanks to the Secretary and Officers of the company for courtesies.

From a Prominent Physician.

Washington, Ohio, June 17, 1880.
Reading the advertisement of Kendall's Spavin Cure, and having a valuable and speedy horse which had been lame from a spavin eighteen months, I sent to you for a bottle of your cure, which in six weeks removed all lameness and enlargement, and a large splint from another horse, and both horses are today as sound as colts. The one bottle was worth to me one hundred dollars. Yours truly,
H. A. BERGHEIT, M. D.

Bored.

Two weeks ago we advertised in a three-line notice a spring wagon for sale by Judge W. F. Gregory, and by accident it was left in the paper, a second issue. In the meantime, however, a man had seen the ad., and had come and bought the wagon. The second week half a dozen other fellows who saw it called on the Judge to buy the wagon. So many called that his patience was exhausted, and he came up to our office, after having told the eighth man that he had sold the wagon, boiling over with indignation and thinking that we had attempted to play a practical joke on him. We tried to explain, but the Judge would have none of it, and went away declaring that he would rather have kept the wagon than to have been so bored by persons calling in answer to his advertisement.

This little story, which is every word true, comes in a meager way to illustrate the value of advertising. If you have anything to sell the surest and quickest way to find a purchaser is to advertise. People feel like they are invited to visit a merchant who advertises, while they will shun the man who does not advertise as being a close-fisted and illiberal tradesman, unless they happen to be personal friends, in which case they are pretty apt to be aware of the fact. The merchants who would reach prosperity must make through printer's ink to get there.

The Standford Hotel.

An enterprise of which Louisville should be proud, and for which the traveling public should be extremely thankful, is the magnificent Standford Hotel, corner of Tenth and Broadway streets, Louisville, Ky. When we speak of it's magnificent, we mean it, and mean that it is so in every particular. First, the building is a splendid one for the purpose, and, besides the original, there is being completed an addition just half a large as the main building, and comprising an elegant dining-room, reception room, reading room, several new rooms for guests, and a new elevator, which, taken altogether, makes the Standford one of the most commodious and the most convenient of any hotel in the city.

The general management of the hotel is faultless in every respect, and in no department is the slightest thing overlooked which can in any way contribute to the pleasure and comfort of the guests. To go to the Standford, to one who has been there before, is like visiting an old friend, and you receive the same hearty welcome and kind and considerate treatment that the best friend you have would offer you. In fact, the Standford is a "Traveler's Home," and every man to whom the word "home" is dear will know how to appreciate the treatment and accommodations one receives there.

The rates are very low - only $2.00 per day, which, taking everything into consideration, is almost as cheap as staying at home.

If you go to Louisville, at any time, go to the Standford, as it is THE hotel of the city.

OHIO CIRCUIT COURT.

John R. Nichols, plaintiff, vs. S. J. Fields et al., defendants.

All persons having claims against the estate of Asberry Fields, deceased, are hereby notified to produce the same properly proven to the undersigned Master Commissioner of said Court at his office in Hartford, Ky., on or before November 21st, 1881, or they will be forever barred.

Police Court Notes.

John Moore was arrested last Monday and placed under bond to appear before the Honor, Judge O'Flaherty, Saturday Oct. 29, on a charge of breach of the peace.
Van May and Wade Daniel were placed under bond for their appearance on Oct. 29th, when proceedings will be had against them for breach of the peace.
Van May is under bond on a charge of manslaughter. His examining trial was held yesterday, but too late for us to give the result. He is charged with killing his wife who died last Friday or Saturday.
A writ has been sent to Grayson county for Haycraft, who shot Smith during the fair.
Writs have been issued for Will Harlow and Bert Petty for carrying deadly weapons concealed.
Cris Parks was arrested last week for breach of the peace, but escaped from court during his trial.
Processes have been issued against P. D. Taylor and Kearney B. Harman for gambling. They were in the game over which Frank Smith was shot.

We hope the time is now fast drawing near when the good name and dignity of Hartford shall not be insulted, and when those who do violate the law shall receive its severest penalties. To the credit of Judge O'Flaherty be it said that he has hitherto done his duty in a fearless and upright manner and with a little co-operation on the part of the citizens he will soon make the town a model one as far as observance of the law is concerned.

Men Who Make Journalists.

It has been remarked that very few men who get into journalism start out with such intention. They drift in accidentally, are promoted as they develop capacity. Money, wealthy parents and influence are of no sort of service in getting a young man a place on a newspaper. There is no business that is so entirely independent of all these considerations as this. A wealthy father can easily get his son a location to read law or medicine, or push him forward in almost any rank in life he may select; but he is utterly powerless to do anything for him in a journalistic way. To be sure he may buy a newspaper, and set him up in that way, but unless there is something in him called "journalistic knock," a natural knowledge of what to write and how to write it, he will be a failure in that line, and all the money and influence of wealthy and powerful relatives will count for nothing. Some fond parents educate their sons with the special view of making journalists of them; but it is rare that we hear of these young men after a few years. Meanwhile, some youth, born among the hills, having nothing more than a common school education, and the knowledge scraped up in a country printing office, will advance to the front rank in the profession. He has the journalistic knock, and forces recognition because he has it. He gets into a good position, not because he has wealthy parents to influence the proprietors of leading newspapers, but because he knows what to write and how to write it. His articles go in because they supply a demand, while perhaps the elaborate essays of a man educated on two continents are cast into the waste basket.

Chronicles.

Hear me, oh, ye tillers of the soil; open your ears and hearken unto my voice. Put not your trust in men who show unto you models of strange and wonderful inventions, else ye be bamboozled and deceived. Look not upon the model of the machine that goeth forth into the fields to reap and gather up the sheaves. Nor upon the pump that requirith not human aid to reduce from its subterranean led the sparkling water for the refreshment of the lowing kine. Turn ye away from him who prosen'eth their; flee from the sound of his velvet embroidered voice. Escalate ye like a serpent and sting ye like the prickings of the conscience of him who defrauds the publisher and payeth not his yearly tithes. From his lips drippeth taffy as drop-peth the sap from the sugar tree in the camps of our fathers. Shun him, oh, ye agitators of the eluded field, for he will draw over thine eyes the fleecy substance which is called wool, yea, verily, he will hornswoggle ye with words that are pleasant unto the ear. He will say unto ye: "Sign ye this covenant, that ye may act in my stead and supply the toiling masses with my handwork. 'Serve ye as my agent; for will ye not, therefore, wax rich; will ye not the silver and gold flow into thy coffers?' "Sign quickly I beseech ye, that another may not reap the golden harvest in thy stead."

And when ye sign or engrave upon the covenant thy seal, he will go on his way rejoicing, saying unto himself: "Verily, did I not strike the duffer handsomely; did I not turn the trick in bang-up shape?"

When a fortnight passes the machine have come out; the wonderful mechanism failth to materialize. But in their stead there cometh unto ye a person clothed in fine raiment and a look of dignity.

And presenteth unto ye your covenant, saying: "Pay unto me what thou owest; pungle up the ducats, else I bring ye before the judge."

"I hold here thy note of hand for $722.10."

Then will ye wax sore afraid, and your heart will be in your bosom as heavy as the biscuit of the amateur cook.

And ye will go down into your garments for scrip, and will pay the amount, while the stranger will wear an electric smile.

And when the man of fine raiment departeth, ye will say unto your wife: "Yea, verily, am not I a condemned fool?"

And she will softly reply: "You bet." Then will ye seize your ledger and write upon the debit side thereof: To damfoolishness.....$722.10 And on the credit side thereof: By experience.....$100,000,000,000,000,000 - Detroit Free Press.

A Wise Deacon.

"Deacon Wilder, I want you to tell me how you kept yourself and family well the past season, when all the rest of us have been sick so much, and have had the doctors visiting us so often."

"Ho, Taylor, the answer is very easy. I used Hop Bitters in time kept my family well and saved the doctor bills. Three dollars' worth of it kept us well and able to work all the time. I'll warrant it has cost you and the neighbors one or two hundred dollars apiece to keep sick the same time."

"Deacon, I'll use your medicine hereafter."

Incident of Lincoln's Murder.

"Those are not cheerful-looking things, are they?" said Counselor M. A. McDonald, as he sauntered into the office of the United States Marshal, and pointed to a pair of handcuffs lying on the table.

"Not especially enlivening," replied the deputy, picking up the rogues' bracelets and examining them thoughtfully.

"There was a time when I thought they were the most cheerful and terrible things in the world."

The deputy looked up in surprise.

"Yes," continued Mr. McDonald, "I had them both on my hands and feet at once for several hours. I assure you they are not pleasant things to wear."

"Were they put on to keep you a prisoner?" queried the deputy, wondering if his friend could have done anything criminal."

"You would have thought so had you been in my place. I was arrested by officers who thought I was J. Wilkes Booth."

"No," ejaculated the deputy, more as an expression of surprise than an intentional reflection upon the veracity of Mr. McDonald.

"It came about in this way," began the lawyer, whose dark hair and eyes, even now that sixteen years have passed, bear a striking resemblance to the assassin of Lincoln. "Lincoln had been murdered but a few days, and the country, plunged in grief, was wild with desire for revenge upon the murderer. My home was in Titusville, Pa., and I was on the way to it from Washington, where my father was then a Government contractor. The route was by way of Erie. The train had left Erie and gone perhaps a dozen miles, when a couple of officers surprised me by putting me under arrest and clapping handcuffs on my feet. In vain I protested. They would not believe that I was not Wilkes Booth. To add to the unpleasantness of the thing, and a fact which also gave color to the belief that I was the President's assassin, it was well known that Booth had interests in the oil regions of Pennsylvania, and had been there a number of times. The men who arrested me did so upon the strength of my great resemblance to a picture of Booth, which they had in their possession. When it became known on the train that the assassin of Lincoln had been arrested and was on that very train, the excitement was intense. The officers who were guarding me had all they could do to prevent the infuriated passengers from doing me bodily harm. It had been telegraphed along the line of the road that Lincoln's murderer was under arrest, and would pass through on his way to Titusville. At every station the train was met by infuriated men who clanked upon woodpeckers to get a glimpse of me, and many times on that journey I feared that the mob would get possession of me. When the train reached Curry there was a man boarded the train who knew me. But the officers would not listen to him, and it was not until Titusville was reached, where every man, woman and child knew me, that the handcuffs and manacles were removed from my wrists and ankles, and I was allowed my liberty. I have the photograph which furnished the clue to the officers who arrested me, in my possession now."

Perils of Sleeping Cars.

There is a good deal of interest manifested these days on the part of the American people relative to the matter of separate sleeping cars for the two sexes. It is a move in the right direction, and we hope it will win. As it is now, no gentleman traveling alone is safe. Several months ago, entirely alone, we traveled from Erie to Chicago and back, making the round trip with no escort whatever. Our wife was detained at home, and our entire journey was made with no one to whom we could look for protection. When we returned our hair had turned perfectly white with the horror of those dreadful nights. There was one woman from Philadelphia, whose name we will not mention and who rode all the way between Omaha and Chicago in one car. Almost the first thing when we started out of Omaha she began to make advances toward us by asking us if we would not hold her lunch basket while she went after a drink of water. She also asked for our knife to peel an orange. These things look small and insignificant, but in the light of later developments they are of vital importance. That evening we saw with horror that the woman's section was adjoining our own. We asked the conductor if this could not be changed; but he laughed coldly and told us to seek our beds, or some such unfeeling remark. That is one bad feature of the present system. A man traveling alone gets no sympathy or assistance from the conductor. It would be impossible to describe the horror and appreciation of that awful night. All through its vigils we suffered on till morning, when tired nature yielded, and we fell into a troubled sleep. There we lay, fair and beautiful, in the soft gray of approaching day, thousands of miles from our home, and less than ten feet away, a great horrid woman from Pennsylvania, to whom we had not even been introduced. How we could have slept so soundly under the circumstances we are yet unable to tell, but after perhaps twenty minutes of slumber we saw, above the footboard of our berth and peering over at us, the face of that woman. With a wild bound we were on our feet in the aisle of the car. The other berths had all disappeared but ours.

The other passengers were sitting quietly in their seats, and it was half past 9 o'clock. The woman from Pennsylvania was in the day coach. It was only a horrid dream.

But supposing it had been a reality! And any man that travels alone is liable to be insulted at any time. We do not care for luxury in traveling. All we want is the assurance that we are safe.

The experience which we have narrated above is only one of thousands. Did you not see the carcass look of the man who was traveling alone? The wild, haunted expression on the countenance and the horrid apprehension that is depicted there?

You may talk about the various causes that are leading men downward to early graves, but the nervous strain induced by the fear that while they are taking out their false teeth or buttoning their suspenders, prying eyes are looking over the footboard of their berths, is constructing more new-made graves than consumption or the Ute war.—Nye's Boomerang.
